Administration Plays Vital Role

After instituting various changes in curriculum and offering many new courses, the administration realized there was still room for improvement. Superintendent Bliefernich saw the need for a complete renovation of the buildings so that more programs could be added to increase educational opportunities for students. Mr. Turner agreed that proper school facilities are important, but his belief is that the quality of a student's education is also largely determined by his own desire to learn.

The administration and school board co-ordinated efforts to formulate plans for a new junior-senior high school, with the help of a Lincoln architectural firm. Several public meetings were held to inform the community of the proposed school bond. On December 2, the bond issue was defeated by a vote of 850 to 296.

Expanded Curriculum Aids Students

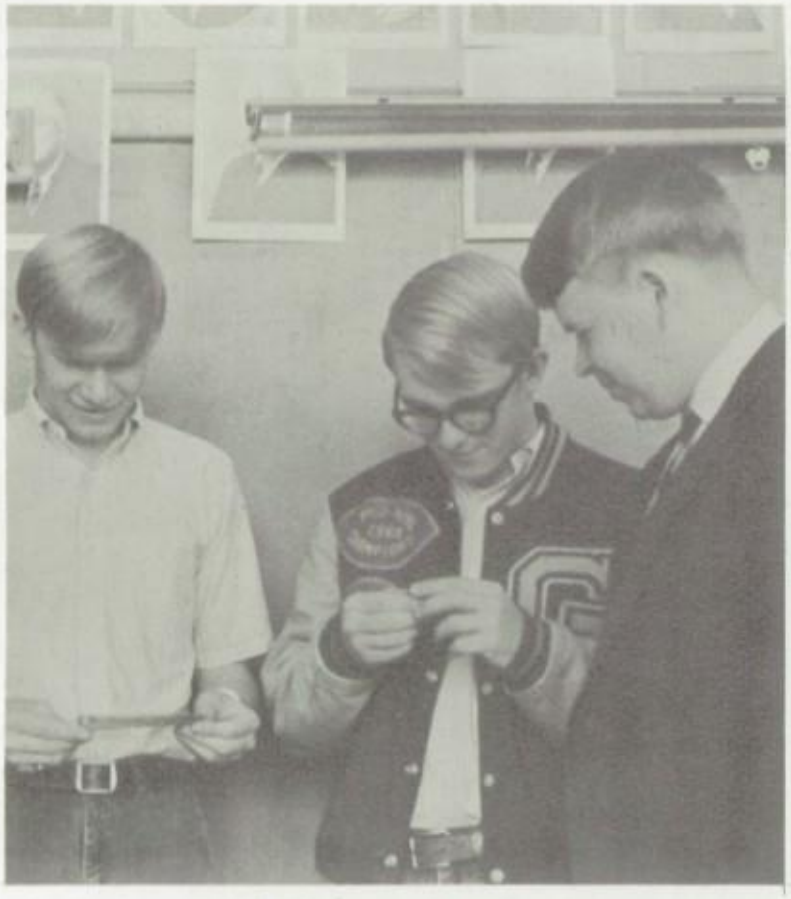
Diversified Occupations offered seniors on-the-job experience in various vocational occupations. The value of good business management was incorporated in training.

The class in Occupational Mechanics included work in concrete and masonry, combustion engines, welding, and basic principles of electricity.

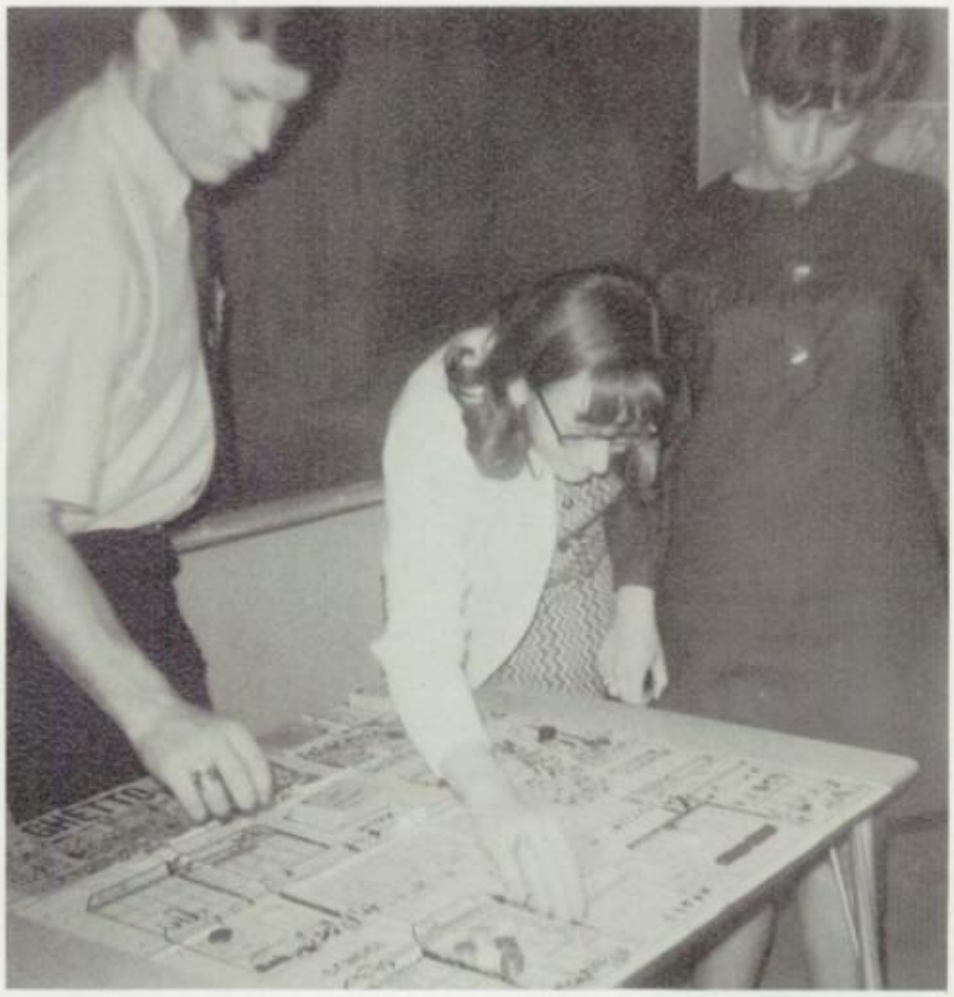
Industrial Arts included woodworking, emphasizing the use of tools. In Crafts, students fashioned articles of a variety of materials, including plastic and leather.

Drafting helped students acquire a simple knowledge of mechanical drawing. The course also familiarized the class with blueprints.

In Preparing for Their Futures



Economics studied the American economy, business cycles, banking, the purpose and value of money, inflation, and the Federal Reserve System.



Special Humanities combined a study of sociology, psychology, law, and economics. Classes realized the problem within our society through aids like the "Ghetto" game.

In Geography, students studied the topographical, meteorological, and historical urbanization of today's society, using relief maps as aids.

World Literature provided students with an in-depth study of great masterpieces, including the Bible, Greek classics, different philosophies, and contemporary novels.

Sophomores

Four sophomores attended the annual Inter-High Day at Kearney State College on March 20. They were: Pam Lichti, German I and General Biology; Gerald McCoy, Driver Education; Everett Schnegelberger, Sports Education; Jim Stuckey, Geometry.

The sophomore class got an early start on earning needed money for future expenses. Members of the class worked together to sponsor a successful soup supper and bake sale at different times during the year.

Freshmen

The first year for freshmen was a time of necessary adjustment. Freshmen pursued their own varied interests by participating in the sports program, organizations, activities, or concentrating on studies.

Freshmen attending Inter-High Day were: Don Bandemer, Algebra I; Rose Ann Sladek, World History.

A New Life, 6,700 Miles From Home.

Roberta's family: Mr. and Mrs. John Wilkins, Jim. Standing: Roberta, Linda, Bill, and Becky.

Planning to be an AFS student takes many months of preparation. After completing numerous forms and endless packing, Roberta left her parents and two sisters in Austria and excitedly traveled to the United States to meet her new family on August 2, 1969. The wedding of her "sister" left only three days until the beginning of school. Roberta soon developed many lasting friendships and a great enthusiasm for football.

Besides American friends, she had the opportunity to meet foreign students also living in Nebraska. Roberta's holidays were filled with trips to her "sister" in Chicago, friends in New Jersey, and sightseeing in New York City. After graduation, her family traveled to California.

Roberta tearfully said good-bye, June 29, 1970. Promises of letters and future visits did not ease the ending of this episode of her life.

Being accustomed to the mountainous terrain of Austria, Roberta enjoys horseback riding through the level plains, characteristic of the Nebraska countryside.

Roberta receives a mischievous glance from a Shrine Circus elephant. She discovered that the fun and fascination of circus life is universal.

Seniors Have Great Expectations

The 1969-1970 school term provided 63 seniors with a busy schedule of fun and hard work. Along with homework, term papers, and school projects, seniors remained active in extra-curricular activities and part-time jobs. An expanded curriculum enabled students to select from a wide variety of courses which would coincide with their future plans.

Many memories will remain of the last days at GHS but it is hoped that 1970 graduates will be able to look back at this year with a feeling of pride and accomplishment.

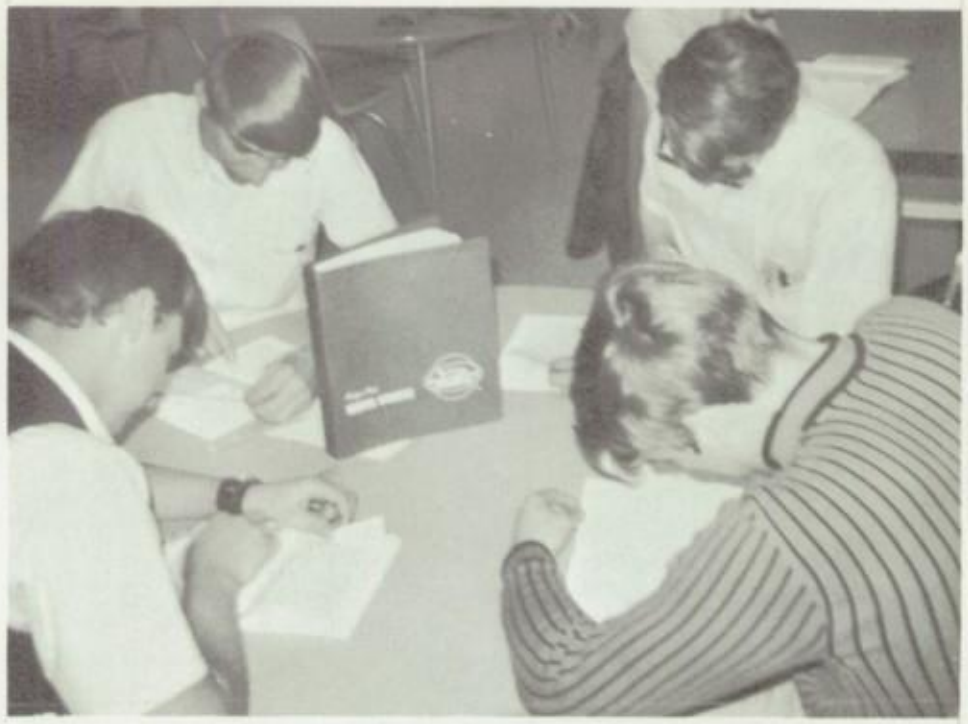
Speed Reading

A new field of interest for many this year was the Evelyn Wood's Reading Dynamics Course, which was offered to students and other community members. It promised to increase the reading rate of each person taking the course by at least three times. Students found the course very helpful in completing reading assignments, skimming through research, and for their own reading enjoyment. Several seniors took advantage of the course to prepare them for college work or to learn to read at a faster rate and with better comprehension.



T. Bumgarner, D. Fixemer, D. Kohler, and R. Renken practice speed drills at one of the sessions. They were among the ten seniors who benefited from the reading course.

Seniors attending Kearney Inter-High Day were: Terry Schroder, Bookkeeping (5th place); Bill Kelch, Welding; Steve Nicholson, Advanced Math; Bill Yates, Economics (2nd place) and Slide Rule (1st place); Therese Walter, Trigonometry and Physics; Ken Marks, Mechanical Drawing; Annette Boo, World Geography.

Four seniors, Steve Nicholson, John Adamson, Bill Yates, and Therese Walter, received the honor of Outstanding Teenagers of America.

College-bound seniors were required to take the SAT or ACT college entrance examinations. Scores were used to predict the student's ability for college work and also for placement purposes. Regent Scholarship winners were also chosen from SAT scores. John Adamson was this year's recipient with Therese Walter and Bill Yates as Regent Alternates.

Colleges, business and trade schools indicated seniors varied interests. Schools included: University of Nebraska and Missouri, Nebraska Wesleyan, Grand Island Business, Ben's, Wartburg, Dana, Hastings, Colo. Western, Kearney State, Milford, Grace Bible Inst., Creighton, Friends, Associated Schools, and Parks.

Seniors Celebrate Together

On May 19, dozens of cars, brimming with food and seniors, traveled several miles to a picnic area just outside of Hebron. With the usual hungry appetites, hot dogs were roasted and quickly consumed, potato chips disappeared, and the class enjoyed their last formal get-together.

To top the evening off, seniors were entertained by the daring aerobatics of Mr. Joe Fisher, as he performed loops and spins high overhead in his self-constructed airplane.

Senior boys enjoy wading, splashing, and even fishing in the nearby river. Girls were less "enthusiastic" about the river and the inevitable dunkings that occured.

Hungry seniors pass the time before supper by relaxing under the shade trees. Food for the picnic was purchased with money seniors earned.

The intense heat of the campfire makes it difficult for picnickers to roast their hotdogs. Branches from surrounding trees and bushes were "borrowed" for roasting sticks.

Mr. Bohling and Miss Sugden, senior sponsors, prepare the food for serving. Seniors were fortunate to have them as chaperones at the picnic.

Cross Country Builds Endurance

Cross Country was added to the list of competitive sports at GHS this year. The team participated in competition at York, Hebron and Utica before traveling to the Mid-Nebraska conference meet at Hastings. At the meet, Sam West led the young team by placing sixth in the 1.9 mile course with a time of 10:49. Marc Cruse followed closely in the same 23 man field with a seventh place and a time of 10:50. The varsity team, consisting of M. Cruse, B. Yates, R. Chitwood, and S. West, carried the team to a third place in the conference meet. Reserve members of the squad were: J. White, B. Stephens, and R. Hellbusch.

Intramurals Challenge Students

Intramurals enables boys and girls to enjoy a bowling game after school. Students involved divided into leagues and organized tournaments to determine the championship team.

Mr. Sallans served as faculty sponsor of intramurals for the 1969-1970 school year. Assisted by seniors, Bill Kelch and Larry Beavers, he took charge of the organization and responsibility of the group. Boys from all four classes chose teams and team captains and participated in many different sports including football, tennis, basketball, bowling, softball, and volleyball.

The program provided competition through team tournaments, exercise, and opportunities of leadership for students not taking part in the school's organized athletic program. Intramurals also offered the students a chance to enjoy a wide variety of sports in which they would otherwise not actively participate.

Basketball proves to be another invigorating recreation for intramural competition. Boys found time to keep active and in good condition with energetic evening games.

Homecoming Sparks Student Spirit

Victory over the Seward Bluejays, 37-14 made all the hours of practice and preparation worthwhile. Spirit climaxed at the half-time coronation of Queen Sonja and King Jay. Sonja served Pep Club as cheerleader four years. Jay was president of G Club and four year letterman. The Undertakers provided music for the victory celebration which the Katz Klub and G Club co-sponsored.

K. Slepicka, S. Lovegrove, K. Shields, and D. Biba are in good spirits as they paint encouraging words on store windows in preparation for the Homecoming parade and rally.

GHS marching band provided musical background for the half time coronation ceremonies, after which an elated Sonja Schmidt is congratulated by equally happy Mary Maier.

Among the happy fans cheering the Wildcats to victory over the Bluejays is Susan Brown, 1968 Homecoming Queen. Many alumni returned to enjoy the game and coronation.

Young Citizens Observe Government

The annual Cornhusker County Government Day was held on November 18, 1969. Eighty-five Fillmore County students representing their respective high schools attended.

Attorney John Gewacke and Reverend Adrain Edgar were featured speakers. County Government Day provided the knowledge of how government is run at the county level.

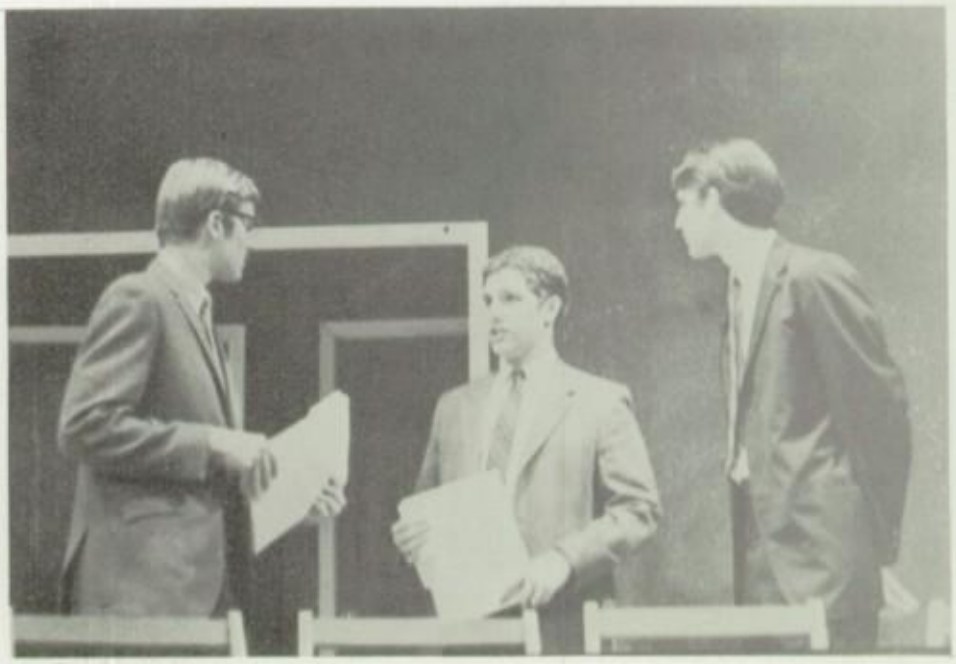
GHS Players Begin with "Journey"

The Geneva High School Players opened the season with a drama. Journey To The Day, by Roger Hirson. The play dealt with the psychological problems of six patients in a state hospital, who attend group therapy sessions designed to bring reasons for their mental anguish to the surface. Each patient gradually discovers realities about himself through the course of discussion and disagreements, while looking hopefully toward his own day of release. Cast included: Britt Bailey, John O'Brien, Mike Watmore, Cheryl Eynetich, Rod Norrie, Mike Becker, Cathy Brown, Mary Maier, Tom Hofferber, Alan Slepicka, Becky Gough. Script Girl: Mary O'Brien.



Dr. Endicott, Dr. Sobik, and Dr. Gutera discuss the psychological problems of the six patients who were chosen as potential members for the group therapy sessions.

Katherine seeks solace in religion after memories of a traumatic experience cause her to search for the why's behind her suicidal attempt.

Dr. Gutera explains the purpose of the sessions and invities each of them to express their thoughts and feelings on any subject they wish; but each remains silent.

After the group learns to talk to one another, each relates past experiences. Elmer P. Cooper again takes the floor to tell another egotistical account of his life.

Players' "Dream" Becomes Reality

On April 10 and 11 the GHS players produced A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM by W. Shakespeare. This farce involved several themes, all centered around the adventures of four lovers. Confusion prevailed as the dazed lovers were put under a spell, and the queen of the fairies fell in love with Bottom, "translated" into an ass. All ended happily, however, with a triple wedding and an amusing play presented by the mechanicals.

When not getting into one type of mischief or another, the six mechanicals spend their time in diligent rehearsals for the play to be presented on the Duke's wedding night.

Theseus, Duke of Athens, and his betrothed, Hippolyta, discuss their wedding plans as Egeus looks on, ready to give advice if needed.

"Lord, what fools these mortals be!" Once again impish Puck and his master, Oberon, devise a clever scheme to reunite the four lovers.

Earth Day Combats Pollution

The slogan of Earth Day was, "If you're Not Part of the Solution, You're Part of the Pollution." Like other students, J. O'Brien and D. Peterson work to solve the problem.

Tired from two hours of steady clean-up effort, K. Matejka and J. Eich rest by Highway 41 while waiting for a city truck to collect litter bags in their assigned area.

Concern for the environment prompted "Earth Day," organized by Mr. Flohr's Humanities class. May 7, citizens joined forces with junior and senior high students to clean-up Geneva, and in doing so, took part in the anti-pollution campaign. Students spent the afternoon searching the town for litter which was deposited in sacks provided by the Cellar Feed store. The amount of garbage collected, which city trucks hauled to the dump, was surprising to all. Hot and tired, students returned to the school for cooling refreshments provided by Safeway, Jack and Jill, Geneva State and Fillmore County Banks.

S. Nicholson stoops to reach discarded litter, agreeing that "Every litter bit hurts!" After this, many vowed never to be litter-bugs again.

"Charlie Brown" and his friends entertain mothers and daughters at the annual banquet. Freshman girls performed the skit in which characters portrayed members of the pep club.

Senior girls and their mothers enjoy the delicious covered dish dinner. Paper wildcats and "pom poms" decorated the tables.

Students Receive Many Awards

The annual Honors Convocation was held May 25, with numerous awards given to many deserving students. Among those receiving awards for outstanding achievement were 15 GAA members who had earned letters, 7 boys who had completed the aviation course, and several FHA degrees. Student Council officers and editors of the annual and school paper were also honored for their hard work.

Juniors Invite Seniors to Banquet

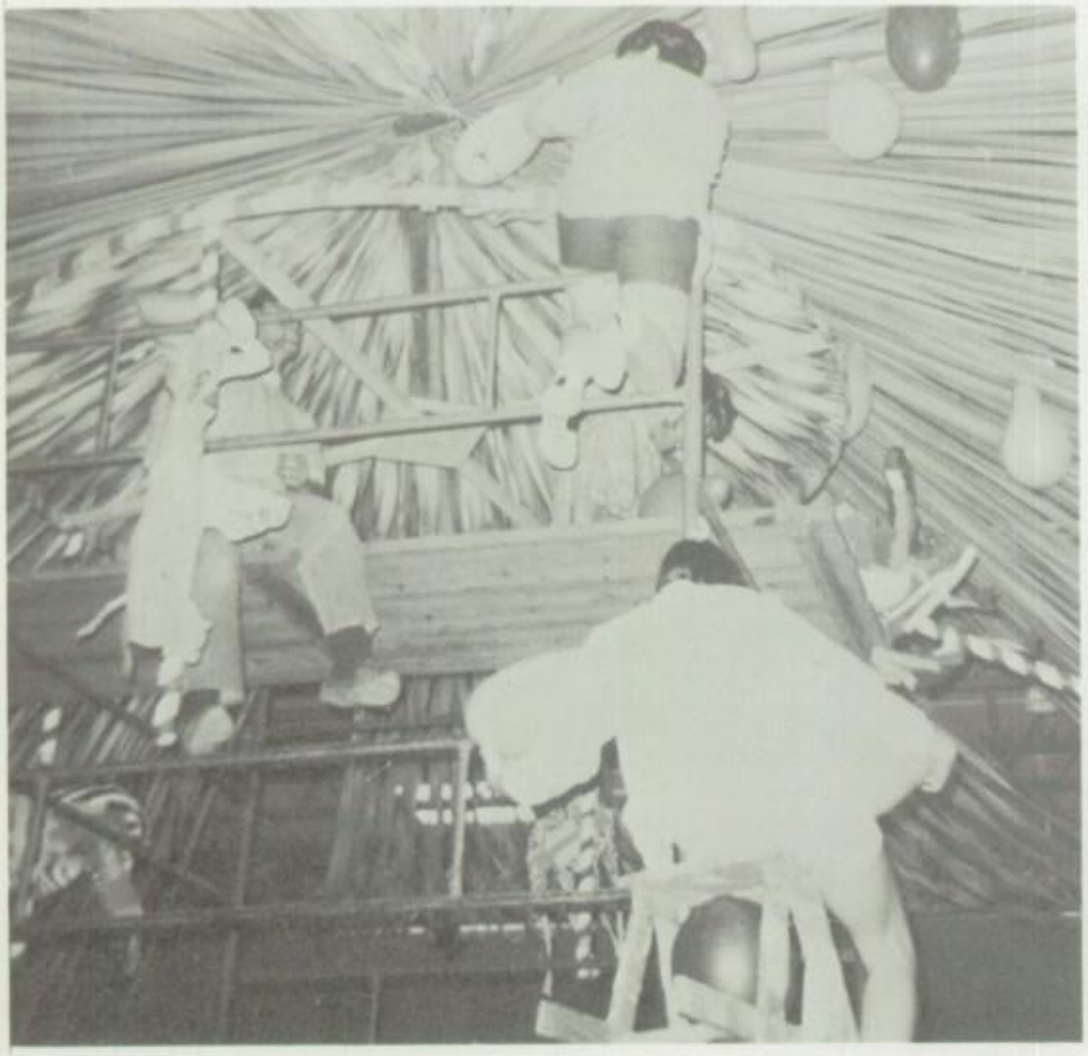
Imaginative artistry, representing characteristic circus animals, cover the walls and add to the bustling circus atmosphere. The decorations helped to revive memories of circus fascination.

Hard-working juniors painted murals, constructed nut cups and centerpieces, and practiced skits many weeks before the deadline of the annual Junior-Senior Banquet, May 1.

With the help of mothers and class sponsors, ideas were formulated and carried out and delicious food was prepared for the many senior guests.

The theme for that special night was chosen early in the year and as traditional, kept secret from the senior class. It was not until the night of the banquet that most of the seniors were surprised by the beautiful and unique decoration under the "circus tent."

Following the meal, several juniors entertained the delighted crowd with skits.



Workers add finishing touches to the canopy with colorful balloons and circus animals. No circus is complete without a merry-go-round so the juniors devised one high above the banquet floor.

From high above, Willa Foster calls for more streamers as juniors work steadily to complete last minute decorations.

"Under the Circus Big-Top"

Mrs. McCarthy prepares to fill a plate for waiting juniors and seniors. Many mothers joined in to make the banquet a success.

Margaret Ogden returns to the kitchen on an errand for impatient upperclassmen. Sophomore servers wore colorful costumes which included red "clown" noses made from ping pong balls.

Entertainment: Magic to Marauders

John Adamson, senior president, expresses his pleasure over the banquet with a big smile. After dinner speakers were Mr. Archie Chapman and Mr. Maurice Hawthorne.

The renowned trapeze artist, Tom "Terrifico" Hofferber, uses his powerful kick to reach the swing, suspended dangerously high above the ground.

The distinguished muscle-man, Randy Lechtenberger, prepares to astound the audience by displaying his extraordinary strength and ability with the weighty barbell.

The sound of the "Marauders" holds the attention of students after the banquet. They helped give an evening of enjoyment for juniors and seniors.
